

History

Our unique history programmes enable you to think critically about the global past, to engage with the most pressing concerns in our future.

Study History from a refreshing non-Western perspective at SOAS. We'll fuel your passion for the peoples, pasts, and societies of Africa, Asia, and the Middle East – and how they all interconnect. Exciting regional, thematic, and global modules are taught by leading specialists, and enriched by our students – a highly diverse community of people who have a lot to teach each other about history and the world. Our seminar-based classes offer plenty of scope for sharing knowledge and different perspectives. We'll also help you to make the most of resources that support our global approach. That includes our own incredible library and archives, as well as those nearby, such as The British Library, Wellcome Trust and Senate House.

Our enthusiasm for global history runs through our programmes. We develop cutting-edge modules, feed specialist research into our teaching, and embrace technology and innovation to keep things fresh – from audio dramas to public panel discussions. Here, you'll be empowered to think critically about the evolution of historical study and its impact on how we see the world today.
